In challenging times, does your company want to think differently and change behaviour?

Our coaching approach challenges current thinking to help individuals make sense of themselves or situations, supports them to expand the boundaries of what is possible, resulting in improved business performance.

In challenging times, do you want to prioritise where you invest your development budget and be more creative in how you develop your key people?

We provide coaching for specific groups of people at key moments in their development.

“The significant problems we have, cannot be solved at the same level of thinking with which we created them.”

Albert Einstein

Our approach

Step 1	Meet the coach with no obligation.
Step 2	Agree a clear contract of what you want to achieve from the coaching – objectives – measures – confidentiality
Step 3	Four to six coaching sessions – 1-2 hours duration each
Step 4	Review and agree next steps.

Depending on requirements, we provide personality profile diagnostics, 360° feedback profiling and ongoing phone and email support.

We ensure we create clear agreement on roles and responsibilities, confidentiality and outcomes between the coach, the coaching client and the organisation sponsor. We focus on behavioural change and clear actions at the end of each session. We challenge and support in order to help people think differently and make better decisions

What our clients say about our approach?

I have always had an aversion to "management speak" and felt sceptical about coaching but I can thoroughly recommend Robert Adam as someone who is very astute, practical and tough. He has helped me to be ready to deal with difficult issues with his "jargon free" approach. CAPSTICKS

Represent have the great ability of not putting up with any nonsense without ever coming across as aggressive or intolerant. Constructively challenging. Working with Represent can be life changing, as long as you are prepared to put the work in yourself. APPLEYARDS

Through recognised coaching techniques Rosemary has helped me to work more effectively in my role & to determine the building blocks required to further my career. She has an open, natural style & my meetings with her are always enjoyable, challenging & productive. COSTAIN
